Mr. B. G. H. Vanderjagt

Dear Mr. Vanderjagt:

This will acknowledge and thank you for your recent correspondence to Mr. Dulles and [redacted] and for your making available to us the voluminous materials connected with your research and study.

We very much appreciate your loan of these data as well as all your comments and suggestions. However, we have concluded after study of this material that it does not have a practical application to the work of this Agency. Accordingly, I am returning herewith your briefcase and the various data you have loaned us.

Again, many thanks for your thoughtfulness and interest in bringing your observations to our attention.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

MEMORANDUM FOR: [redacted]
Room 229 - Admin Bldg

SUBJECT: Mr. Vanderjagt's Revelations

1. I have looked through Mr. Vanderjagt's papers and I have also asked my colleague, [redacted] to review them. We both have come to the conclusion that there is nothing in those documents that would be of advantage to CIA.

2. This is not the first attempt to develop a "formula" on Marxist doctrine, but I feel, and so does [redacted] that Mr. Vanderjagt's formula does not offer anything useful. It is involved, complex and often unintelligible.

3. Mr. Vanderjagt has bombarded me with a series of letters which I am attaching herewith to complete the file. Please let me know whether you want me to write him a letter stating that I have referred his papers to another office, which in turn will let him know. In the meantime, his papers, which he left me in his brief case, will be sent over to you for further disposition, as you suggested on the telephone.

Attack on Religion By Reds Reported

By the Associated Press

The United States Information Agency reported today that a Russian radio station broadcast an attack on religion May 30, thereby breaking several months of Soviet silence on the subject.

Radio Minsk in a broadcast to Byelorussia declared that the primary task of schools in a Communist country is to make children "irreconcilably hostile" to religion, USIA said.

The speaker on Radio Minsk, who was not identified, was reported by USIA to have called religion a special type of "intoxicating ritual liquor."

Dear [redacted]

Thanks very much for your letter of June 14 th and which was far more than I expected. Generally you get the whole thing back and are told to try another agency.

I understand quite well that your Agency is only a clearing house and does not give opinions.

I have a correspondence with one of the U.S. Senators and in which he nobly tries to defend the present system of attack on communism. I guess however that he got the first shock when I asked him if he could tell me that the linen-coat formula of Karl Marx and after his own explanation the whole mystery of value, was wrong from a theoretical scientific point of view, he could not do this. And he is one of the Senators who is not exactly friendly for the commies.

The next answer told me that from a political point of view I scraped only the bottom of the barrill. Or he did not see that my thesis lies in so far outside politics as it is based on the laws of nature, but, in my opinion not so strange coincidence, politics have always to follow in order to become correct.

You have read about Queen Juliana. When I read newspapers I take not only a grain of salt, but I know from Dunnewolt how she recommended his book and got him an invitation with some 30 other scientists, communists included, who came together, two years ago in one of her castles and for 3 days they could talk their heads off on all things.

Queen Wilhelmina was more than less of the Calvinistic type and with Princess Maryke nearly blind, under the circumstances it is easy to go to some extremes. And faith healers are not uncommon.

I have been in Lourdes and will be the last to deny that the so-called miracles are fakes. Only they are no miracles.

By one reason or another, which can only be explained by the meaning of what we call "space" at a certain moment a communication with the Original Energy might be possible and IF it serves the general evolution in one way or another, the so-called miracle may show up. But without unbalancing the laws of nature. Only we don't understand these things yet because our present science, which is still so young, refuses yet to understand that space is something else as a vacuum.

Attached is another clipping which shows to another extreme and which is also understandable when you read the chapter The Working Day in Karl Marx's Das Kapital.

Dunnewolt's book by itself may lead to some extreme. Therefore I think that my thesis, set in proper language may lead to a proper balance and without destroying religion or the idea of evolving the masses to a higher standard of living.

Professor Reiser, who as head of the philosophical department of Pittsburgh University, has quite a different position than I have got, wrote me that he would welcome a thorough investigation even by his own university, though he admits that before present capitalistic science and worse communistic science had to admit that physics and its organizational mathematics were the most direct communication with the Original Energy, "some" energy had to be used to overcome the resistance against transformation.

However it might give Mr. Ed Lichfield, the present Rector of Pitt and who has $ 100 million at his disposition a possibility to get the U.S.A. scientific world from under the domination of Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

I will keep you posted about the proceedings, and thanks very much for the trouble I caused you.

Respectfully yours,

B.G.H. Vanderjagt
